The screenshot displays a chatbot interface for the 'Procedure to Change Ownership'. On the left, a vertical list of steps is shown: Step 1 is 'Procedure to change ownership', Step 8 is 'Understood', and Step 9 is 'This step has no content'. A 'New step +' button is at the bottom. The main chat area shows the assistant's response: 'Generally, no. In most cases, either state law or the terms of the account provide that you usually cannot remove a person from a joint checking account without that person's consent, though some banks may offer accounts where they explicitly allow this type of removal. In case of any emergencies, write a letter to the General Manager of the Bank, with the consent of the previous owner. Provide certain documents for address and name proof (Aadhar, PAN card etc.)'. Below this, there are buttons for 'Understood' and 'Other Queries', and links for 'Edit response' and 'Edit validation'.
